Institution description

PAREXEL, a leading global biopharmaceutical services provider operating 70 locations throughout 54 countries, has a team of clinical research experts providing strategic and scientific solutions to facilitate the transition from development to commercialization. Working with biopharmaceutical companies as well as government-based and academic organizations, these experts profile product safety in real-world settings, provide evidence of product value and effectiveness, and conduct trials to extend the product lifecycle. PAREXEL has significant expertise in post-licensing, ranging from risk management, regulatory consulting, and pharmacoepidemiology to health outcomes. The company has implemented some of the largest, most complex trials of marketed products ever conducted.
