Institution description

IBSalut (Balearic Health Service) is the public healthcare organization responsible for managing and delivering health services in the Balearic Islands, Spain. It operates under the regional government (Govern de les Illes Balears) and aims to ensure universal access to healthcare for residents and eligible visitors.
Its main functions include the planning, organization, and provision of medical care across the islands, covering primary care centers, hospitals, emergency services, and specialized treatments. IBSalut coordinates a wide network of healthcare professionals and facilities to provide comprehensive services such as preventive care, diagnosis, treatment, rehabilitation, and health promotion.
The organization is also responsible for managing healthcare resources, including workforce, infrastructure, and budget allocation, as well as implementing public health policies adapted to the specific needs of the Balearic population. In addition, IBSalut works to guarantee quality, safety, and efficiency in healthcare delivery, while promoting innovation and continuous improvement in medical services.
Overall, IBSalut plays a key role in maintaining the health system in the Balearic Islands, ensuring that healthcare is accessible, equitable, and aligned with the standards of Spain’s national health system.
