Institution description

The Children’s Memorial Health Institute (IPCZD) is a research institute and pediatric hospital located in Warsaw, Poland. It is one of the largest and most specialized medical centers for children in the country.

The Institute combines two major roles:

1) Specialist hospital – It provides comprehensive care for children with rare, complex, or severe conditions and often functions as the national referral center for difficult cases. Its departments cover most areas of pediatric medicine, including oncology, cardiology, neurology, transplantology, and genetics.

2) Scientific research center – It conducts advanced research in pediatrics and related sciences, develops new diagnostic and therapeutic methods and contributes to international medical studies.
