Institution description

Epividian, Inc. is the sole owner of the OPERA® Cohort, a large clinical cohort of individuals in the care of primary care and infectious disease clinics in the United States. Epividian collects administrative, clinical, and payer information from the electronic health records (EHR) of these practices daily and/or weekly to support the clinical operations of medical practices, and observational studies supporting public health, regulatory and clinical research. Epividian provides affiliated providers an application platform which facilitates complex patient care and allows for advanced reporting of clinical data which supports clinical workflows, quality measurement, government reporting and payer reimbursement. In addition to epidemiological and implementation research, surveys and focus groups have been administered to patients and providers. OPERA® seeks to facilitate world-class research in HIV, Hepatitis, and other chronic illnesses, both for treatment and prevention.
